«I am particularly pleased to present MIRABILE, the «Archivio Integrato del Medioevo Latino (AIML)» to the world of medieval studies, containing the extensive databases of medieval studies resulting from collaboration between the Società Internazionale per lo Studio del Medioevo Latino (SISMEL) and the Fondazione Ezio Franceschini (FEF) and their journals published by SISMEL · Edizioni del Galluzzo.

The MIRABILE databases – MEDIOEVO LATINO, BISLAM e CALMA – create an information system of considerable dimension, making available an extensive, comprehensive bibliographic repertory, the only authority list in existence of Medieval Latin authors, including the first issues of an authoritative encyclopedia of Medieval authors.

MIRABILE offers an enormous amount of information, collected over thirty years of research by international specialists in attentive and accurate evaluation and editing of data, in keeping with the tradition of Medioevo latino. Directed over these years by Claudio Leonardi, the project will issue periodical revisions with the idea of continuously expanding an integrated, digital archive, an open and flexible system such that new projects can continually be incorporated».

SISMEL has decided to take advantage of the tools offered by new technologies to make its collection of repertories and journals available online:

MEDIOEVO LATINO

Bibliographical Bulletin of European Culture from Boethius to Erasmus (VI-XV centuries)

This well known annual bibliography in print form, bringing together the preceding year's research in medieval studies, is the result of systematic and exhaustive culling of monographs, journals, and bulletins concerning medieval Latin culture, in particular, and medieval culture and history, in general. The bulletin, which at the moment catalogs more than 250,000 bibliographic entries, in large part abstracts of content (distinguishing it from other bibliographies), has been published in hard copy since 1980, becoming over the years a point of reference for scholars of the Middle Ages. A sophisticated search engine makes it possible to do simple and advanced searching throughout the entire database, which is continually revised and updated.

BISLAM

Bibliotheca Scriptorum Latinorum Medii recentiorisque Aevi

This project, now ten years old, consists of the most complete repertory of medieval Latin authors. The aim, in fact, is to cover the period in which Western European literature was produced exclusively, or in large measure, in Latin, but also, in keeping with the choices made for «Medioevo latino», to extend into the early Renaissance including a considerably larger number of authors than existing repertories. At the moment, BISLAM contains more than 15,000 names (with more than 80,000 variants of these). The repertory consists of a list of different names by which the authors were and are known, in addition to identification and bibliographic information.

CALMA

Compendium Auctorum Latinorum Medii Aevi (500-1500)

This bibliographic repertory, begun in 2000, contains at the moment more than 3,000 entries on medieval Latin authors from the 6th to the 16th century and gives the canon of their works with essential information on the manuscripts in which they were passed down and relevant bibliography. For each author the repertory provides: an entry containing general bibliography, with the citation of specialized repertories, national and international reference lexicons, general manuals, and various studies on single authors and a list of their works, including those of uncertain authenticity (indicating for each the reference repertory or repertories, edition or editions, manuscripts, and specific studies).

In addition to the above, the following prestigious journals published by Edizioni del Galluzzo are also available online:

Documenti e studi sulla tradizione filosofica medievale (I.1, 1990 –)

An International Journal on the Philosophical Tradition from Late Antiquity to the Late Middle Ages

Filologia mediolatina (I, 1994 –)
